

Keith Wyche

Introduction

From time to time in the game of life, there are some people who beat the odds and find a way to succeed. Who, no matter the obstacles placed in front of them, always manage to get ahead. Our speaker today is such an individual.

Keith Wyche came of age during the turbulent 1960s; the height of the Civil Rights movement. As he endured the trials of being raised in inner city Cleveland, Keith was determined not to use any of those challenges as an excuse.

With a Bachelor's degree from Cleveland State University and an MBA from tiny Baldwin Wallace College, Keith set out to prove that success doesn't depend on WHERE you went to school, rather WHAT you accomplished after you graduate.

During his 30-plus year career, Keith journeyed from the "Classroom to the Boardroom." Working for such iconic companies as IBM, AT&T and Pitney-Bowes, he experienced firsthand that it is possible to climb the corporate ladder and break through the glass ceiling. Wisdom he will share with us and in his two books, Good Is Not Enough and Corner Office Rules.

Today, organizations seek his expertise in the areas of Business Transformation, Talent Management and Strategy Implementation. He is most proud of being named to the Martin Luther King Jr. International Board of Renaissance Leaders by Morehouse College for his contributions to the uplifting of humanity.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I present to you, Mr. Keith R. Wyche.
